William Schmidt, on trial at Wausau for the killing of Geo. Cramer, who was killed by a set gun, was on Saturday found guilty of murder in the second degree and immediately sentenced by Judge Reid to fourteen years in the state prison at Waupun.

Every ward in the city of Rhinelander voted against a change last week in the present manner of conducting its municipal business, opposing the commission form of government. The vote stood 138 for the commission form to 245 in opposition.

The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Milwaukee on Saturday last sent a check for $530,395 22 to the state treasurer for taxes for the year 1913, but the payment was made under protest pending an appeal to the courts, their taxes being $25,000 in excess of the year before.

The Milwaukee Journal, true to its deceitfulness, has virtually come out for ex Senator Hatten, Republican, for governor. It has made itself conspicuous of late advocating Wilson policies, claiming holy devotion to Democratic progressiveness and faithfulness to such Democrats as Husting, Aylward, Schmitz et al., but political death to Judge J. C. Karel. It sees in Judge Karel the only Democratic candidate for governor Hatten has to fear in an election contest in this state in November. Oh you cute, tricky Journal—just the same as in 1896.—Fond du Lac Reporter.

Branch Office in Philadelphia.

Chas H. Curtis left last night for Philadelphia, Pa., where he will open a branch office for the Automatic Cradle Manfg. Co. of this city, and which place will be the headquarters for handling the company business in the eastern states, which has grown very extensively, so much so in fact that this move was found necessary. John J. Bukolt, the inventor of the automatic cradle and the head of the company, started in a few years ago with little outside of his ability, energy and determination, but has already built up a large business, his products being found in all parts of this country, as well as in foreign lands, and the capacity of his plant will be doubled during the coming season.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Misplaced Fat.

Question: How can I reduce large, flabby abdomen?—N. M. H.

Answer: Eat less, particularly of starchy food and sugars. Try the following exercises faithfully:

1—Lie on your back on table or firm bed, hips at edge and legs hanging over, heels resting on floor. Slowly raise legs until toes point at ceiling. Lower legs slowly as possible Keep knees straight. Repeat as strength permits

2—Stand perfectly erect, head level, all muscles tense. Expand chest, draw in abdomen as far as possible. Maintain position, breathing naturally.

3 Stand and walk with chest thrown far out and abdomen drawn far in.

Repeat all exercises as frequently as strength and inclination permit. These are excellent general exercises for anybody to use.

Tuberculosis.

Question: Where can I secure information on consumption? J E O

Answer: Write Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, Milwaukee for free packet of literature. See if local library has books on subject

Cure for Cold Bed

O F B writes: I've tried sleeping with windows wide open and have been cold in spite of heavy coverings

Answer: Your bed is undoubtedly wrongly made. Warmth depends more on what is below than on top of sleeper. An extra mattress, preferably felt, canvas oilcloth, thick paper or rubber blanket as a mattress cover will prevent removing some of covers. A comfy, light and warm blanket to be used under sheet over sleeper can be made by providing comforters with paper instead of cotton.

MERELY SAVING

While a good thing in itself, is not all there is to Thrift.

Thrift seeks not merely to save, but to earn. Thrift at once earns and saves, with a view of wholesome and profitable expenditure at a fitting time. But although saving alone IS NOT THRIFT it is an indispensible part of it.

You can save money without being really thrifty, but you can't be thrifty without saving money.

The best way to learn true thrift is to save a portion of your income regularly and deposit it in this strong bank, where three per cent compound interest will give you a practical demonstration of the earning power of money.

In a comparatively short time you can have a good sum of money at your "profitable expenditure" if you wish.

You can start with one dollar or more.

All business confidential.

RE O the Fifth Now $220 less

New Style Body Electric Lights and Starter

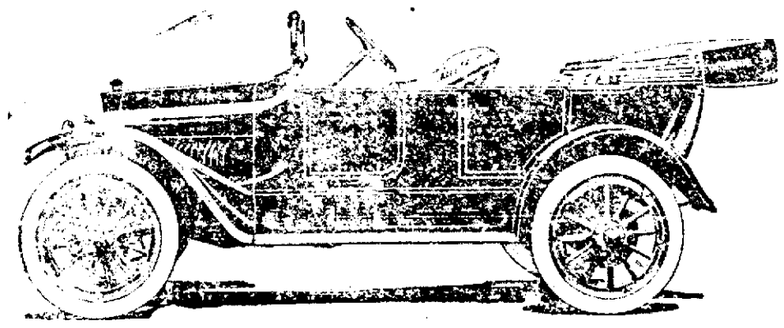
Now $1,175 Equipped



Last season's model of Reo the Fifth, with electric starter and complete equipment, sold for $1,395. And the year was our record year, exceeding our previous year by 25 per cent. Now we have added many improvements. And, without sacrificing one feature, without skimping one part, we are quoting the car at $1,175 complete.

This is the greatest innovation which has ever been offered in the history of the Reo concern. It is the result of a standardizing chasis, so perfected that costly changes are no longer necessary. This chasis was adopted three years ago as Mr. Olds' final car. All the special machinery, jigs and tools for it have been charged against previous output. From now on these items are wiped out from our cost, and the saving goes to our buyers.

There are other savings also. Electric starters cost less this year. We have increased our capacity, and that lessens overhead cost. So we offer you now the best car that R. E. Olds ever built. We offer the handsomest car that ever went from this factory. And we offer a price $220 less than a car of this class ever sold for. Such is the result of three years' concentration on a single model. A car like this at such a price would be otherwise impossible. It has never before been built. And it will never be built save under like conditions. Look where you will—you will find no motor car value this year to compare with this Reo the Fifth.

J. B. Carpenter, justice of peace, 211 Dixon street, Stevens Point, Wis., says: "For fifteen years I suffered from rheumatic pains and kidney trouble. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box at Taylor's drug store. They gave me so much relief that I told in a public statement what they had done for me. I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally since and they have kept me well. I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as strongly as I did when I gave my former statement. I consider them a fine medicine for all kidney troubles."

W. L. Bronson, City Clerk.

A special meeting of the common council of the city of Stevens Point, held in the council chambers Friday evening, Feb. 13, 1914.

His Honor Mayor Walters called the council to order and stated that the meeting was called for the purpose of changing plans of Sawdust street bridge and hear report of committee on auditing books.

All members present except Ald. Hyer.

Ald. McDonald stated that the board of public works had instructed Street Foreman Anschuetz to build Sawdust street bridge as per instructions of the council at their last meeting, but on advice of Chief Packard thought it advisable to change plans. He also stated that Mr. Rutta was delivering piles and if the new plans were adopted there would be 14 piles on hand, for which the railway company will give 25 cents per foot.

Chief Packard was called and stated that by building a 16 foot span in center and fill balance at each end with rock and dirt it would be as good and a great saving in cost of construction and keep.

Moved by Ad. Wallace and seconded to amend the motion made at last meeting to read, to build Sawdust street bridge according to suggestion of Chief Packard "16 foot span in center and fill at both ends. Carried.

Ald. Atwell, chairman of committee on auditing books, reported that they had conferred with Mr. Francis and he stated he was not ready to report at this time but expected to be by March 1.

Ald. Atwell reported that the committee on new books had conferred with a representative of a Milwaukee blank house and are to receive a price in a few days; he estimated the cost at $65.

Mr. Francis was called on, and stated that he had been in the business of auditing books too many years to think it advisable to make a report until he was through, which he said would be about March 1.

Ald. Schenk said that the Stevens Point Brewing Co. were to build new bottling house this summer and if they built on the north of the brewery would ask to put a street through their property from Water street to Henrietta street. This met with the approval of the council but no action was taken.

Moved and seconded that the council adjourn.

W. L. Bronson, City Clerk.

BUSSORAH A FILTHY TOWN.

A Visit to the Apocryphal Home of Sindbad the Sailor.

We were on our way to Bussorah, famous as the apocryphal home of Sindbad the Sailor. Bussorah is the seaport of Bagdad, from which it is distant about 500 miles by river.

Bussorah in the summer is nothing less than a fiery furnace, for the thermometer registers more than 100 degrees [illegible] in the shade during 120 consecutive days, and the mean temperature [illegible] night and day for upwards of [illegible] months is about 95 degrees.

[illegible] fevers, dysentery and ague [illegible] and the town is the [illegible] visited by plague and cholera [illegible] thanks to the cool winter and [illegible] with winds the place is [illegible] healthy for those [illegible] acclimatized.

[illegible] habits and wants of the people are simple and are likely to remain so for some time to come, but [illegible] state of the town is deplorable. The creeks which are tidal [illegible] not only with drinking water but are [illegible] plentifully for all house purposes, and the stench arising [illegible] at low water is overpowering.

[illegible] governor general of the province of Bussorah had his private residence in the upper story of a flimsy lath and plaster edifice overlooking the main road. The walls of his house could not have been more than six inches thick and it was full of windows. The ground floor seemed to be a stable and was occupied by goats.

As our carriage approached, churning up the mud which lay ankle deep along the hollows and obstructions which had so far escaped the attention of a not too observant municipality, we saw the governor [illegible] at an upper window and [illegible] a she goat at a lower one simultaneously.

The governor, a middle aged man of dignified bearing, greeted us gravely and kindly. From his conversation he appeared to be somewhat of a pedant, imbued with the chauvinistic tendencies of the young Turk, and a hardened bureaucrat.

His excellency's salutations as he bade us farewell were expressed with becoming gravity. "We trust that God may be pleased to preserve your excellency's health. Our town is yours as well as our house. May we order our soldiers to accompany you on your ride to Zobeir? Your person is more precious to us than our eyes, and there are evil men, enemies of our lord the sultan, abroad in the desert."—Chambers' Journal.

Shattered His Idol.

Swinburne's admiration for the scenery inspired the walk which every morning, wet or fine, he took across Putney common. It led also to visitors to see the poet walk.

One modest admirer says the London Chronicle, traveled far to catch a glimpse of Swinburne in the flesh and having read of the poet's habits, visited the hostelry at which he called each morning in passing. There sat the literary demigod reading the Pink 'Un, a flashy, low grade paper. But worse followed.

Said the pilgrim to the girl behind the bar, "I suppose you know that is Swinburne, the great poet?" Came the answer, "Yes, I've heard so. But he isn't much good to us. He only drinks beer."

He Missed It.

After the services were over one of the congregation turned to his wife and said, "On my way to church I picked up a button and put it in my change pocket, where I had a quarter."

"Gracious my dear!" anticipated his wife, very much horrified. "And you dropped it into the collection basket by mistake?"

"No, confound it," replied her husband, "I put in the quarter!"—Magazine of Fun.

Imagination.

"They tell me that it is imagination that keeps the doctors busy," said the patient.

"I guess that's right,' replied the physician. "I'm kept pretty busy making out bills which I foolishly imagine are going to be paid some day."—Yonkers Statesman.

Diet For Workers.

After exhaustive researches in Paris a famous French scientist has recommended a diet equally divided between meats and vegetables as the best for working people.

Couldn't Scream.

"I was afraid you'd scream when I kissed you."

"I didn't dare. Mamma was in the next room and would have heard me."—Houston Post.

The youth who does not look up will look down, and the spirit that does not soar is destined perhaps to grovel.—Disraeli.

GETTING ON THE STAGE.

Dangers That Beset New Eggs In the Vaudeville Basket.

The most amazing thing to a theatrical manager is the utter lack of comprehension on the part of applicants of what professional work really means.

When I was writing vaudeville sketches I used to get letters from young fellows in country towns who wanted to go into vaudeville. For some unaccountable reason they figured out that that was the easiest way to break into the entertainment business. As a matter of fact, they were choosing the very toughest end of it all. In vaudeville there is no stage manager to tell one what to do and how to do it. He must rely entirely upon himself. Furthermore he must do his own booking, get his own transfer agent to take care of his baggage, negotiate his own railroading and even pack his own properties. In fact, he has a thousand and one troubles to divert his mind from his proper business. It never seems to dawn upon the aspirant that it's much better to get into a great organization where there's somebody to attend to every problem for him and where he has a chance to learn the details of stagecraft.

A clever vaudeville man, to begin with, must have a good act, and if he be unknown he must know how to talk his act to the managers. If he employs an agent he is at a disadvantage, because these persons work for the management of the theaters. Furthermore, the vaudeville man must remember that he comes out on to the stage with nothing behind him, practically no properties, no chorus girls to divert attention. The eyes of the people are centered on him. He must do it all. It is by far the most difficult business in the world to succeed at, unless one is very talented.—George M. Cohan, in the New York Sun.

MAKES BACKACHE QUICKLY DISAPPEAR

A Few Doses Relieves All Such Miseries. Bladder Weakness, Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism Promptly Vanish

It is no longer necessary for any one to suffer with backaching, kidney trouble, have disagreeable bladder and urinary disorders to contend with, or be tortured with rheumatism, stiff joints, and its heart-wrenching pains, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely relieves all such troubles.

Croxone is the most wonderful remedy yet devised for ridding the system of uric acid and driving out all the poisonous impurities which cause such troubles. It is entirely different from all other remedies. It is not like anything else ever used for the purpose. It acts on the principle of cleaning out the poisons and removing the cause.

It soaks right in through the walls, membranes and linings, like water in a sponge, neutralizes, dissolves, and makes the kidneys sift out and filter away, all the uric acid and poisons from the blood, and leaves the kidneys and urinary organs clean, strong, healthy and well.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what you have used, the very principle of Croxone is such, that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. There is nothing else on earth like it. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves you the first time you use it.

If you suffer with pains in your back and sides, or have any signs of kidney, bladder troubles, or rheumatism, such as puffy swellings under the eyes or in the feet and ankles, if you are nervous, tired, and run down, or bothered with urinary disorders, Croxone will quickly relieve you of your misery. You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class druggist. The proprietors are authorized to guarantee it return the purchase price if it does not cure in a single case.

THE GLASS OF POISONED WINE

Perfidious Husband Meets a Just Fate.

It was in the days of the Borgias, when there were two methods common for getting rid of an enemy—one to stab him in the back, the other to poison him.

Anton Cardi was infatuated with Vittoria Careno; but, she being a married woman, he had concluded to wed Lucia Sanchez, whom he did not love, but who possessed a fortune. No sooner had the wedding taken place than Signor Careno fell ill and died, leaving Vittoria a widow. Then Cardi was beside himself with anguish that he had not waited. His wife had some inkling of the cause of a distress he could not conceal, and since she loved him she, too, was miserable. One day she met Vittoria and turned her back upon her.

"Why do you treat me in this way?" asked Vittoria.

"Because you hold my husband in thrall."

"He holds himself in thrall," replied Signora Careno. "I care no more for him than that." And she snapped her fingers.

Lucia was encouraged at this, thinking that if Anton's love was not returned it would at last wear itself out. She told her husband what Vittoria had said, but it had no effect upon him, he believing that it was a natural denial for Vittoria to make to his own wife. Indeed, when Vittoria to prove what she had said made a friend of Lucia, Anton was infatuated enough to suppose that Vittoria was deceiving his wife with a view to gaining opportunities to be near him. Supposing that the woman he loved would marry him if he were free to marry, he resolved to get rid of his wife by poison.

Lucia was used to taking every morning at 11 o'clock a light breakfast or luncheon, as we would call it in America, consisting of a few fancy biscuits and a glass of wine. A servant usually set it out on a table some time during the morning for her mistress to take at the usual hour. One morning Anton passed through the room where the luncheon stood ready. It was 10 o'clock, and his wife would not partake of it for an hour. Nevertheless he resolved to avail himself of the opportunity to drop poison in the wine. He would remain near and see that no one except she for whom it was intended drank it.

While he was waiting, a summons came to him from the grand duke, with whom he stood in high favor, to come at once to the palace. There was nothing to do but obey. Should he leave the glass of poisoned wine or empty it where it would do no harm? There was no one in the house, for his wife had gone out. She would return before 11, drink the wine, and the culprit, being away at the time, would not be suspected of foul play. He resolved to leave it where it stood.

He had scarcely left the house when he met Vittoria.

"Good morning, Signor Carpi," she said. "I am going to call upon your wife. Is she at home?"

"No," replied Anton; "she is out. You had better choose another time."

"I will go in and wait for her. She has told me that she is never out long in the morning." And she proceeded on her way.

"I must go back," said Anton to the duke's messenger, a young noble of powerful frame and of a merry, devil may care disposition.

"What! To keep company with a lady when your sovereign commands your presence?"

"It is very important that I return to my house at once."

"And I say it is important that you obey the duke's summons."

Anton started to go back, but the messenger caught him about the waist and as he was of light weight carried him on, laughing at his struggles, considering it a fine thing to be keeping him from a meeting with a lady. The fear that Vittoria might drink the poisoned wine gave Anton strength to resist, but with all this to stimulate him he was unable to break away from his tormentor, who carried him into the presence of the duke, whom he told, with great merriment, how he had kept him from an appointment.

"Ha, ha, Signor Carpi," laughed the duke. "We must make an example of a married man who desires to tete-a-tete with a lady in his own house during his wife's absence. Lock the doors. Come, I have sent for you to play a game of cards."

For an hour the duke kept Anton at the game. Anton was so preoccupied that he scarcely knew one card from another.

At 12 o'clock Anton rushed into his house wondering whether he would find Vittoria or his wife dead. He found them both lamenting over the body of his favorite hound. The moment he saw that Vittoria was safe he sank senseless into a chair.

Lucia had come in and found Vittoria waiting for her. Presently Lucia went into the room where lun been had been set out to find the dog dying and the wineglass empty. She called her friend, and they both suspected the wine had been poisoned. When Anton came in excited and fell in a swoon both knew that he had attempted to kill his wife.

Lucia banished her husband from her forever. Vittoria reported the matter to the duke, who permitted Anton to leave Italy. He lived but a short time, being killed in a duel."

Even a fungus may sometimes be converted into a friend of suffering humanity. Doctors have now discovered that the achya muscaria will destroy diphtheria germs by thrusting it down the throat of the patient. The name may be a little nauseating, but surely not worse than nux vomica.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constant failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Women are urged to cease making sideshows of themselves. This will come as a great shock to the gentler sex who have long believed themselves to be more or less the whole show of creation, a claim gallantry has always allowed.

Retired Georgia Planter's Advice to Kidney Sufferers.

Regarding the wonderful curative merits of your Swamp Root, I cannot say too much. After suffering severely for three years or more with severe pains caused by weak kidneys, I was finally induced to try Swamp Root through a testimonial I read in one of the newspapers. I was in such a condition that I was obliged to arise from my bed six or eight times every night. I purchased a fifty cent bottle and before it was used I felt so much relief that I purchased a one dollar bottle and by the time this was taken the old pains had left my back and I could sleep the whole night through. I am a retired planter, 70 years of age, and owing to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, I am in the best of health and feel like a boy. I am always glad to recommend Swamp Root to those who are in need of it.

Sincerely yours,
C. E. USSERY,
Brownsville, Ga.

Personally appeared before me, this 8th day of September, 1909, C. E. Ussery, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

Stablemen are beginning to use the vacuum cleaner instead of the curry comb on their horses. Doesn't this solve the problem of the tramp and the police station bath?

The activity of the bird lovers to save the little creatures from wanton slaughter is amply justified by a recent report on the work of the birds in Georgia, where their destruction of crop destroying insects is estimated at 150,000 bushels of insects a day. The report goes so far as to say that without the saving work of the birds the orchards and fields of the state would be a total loss. It is time that the public was awakening to the great value of birds in forest and field conservation.

The Forty Year Test.

An article must have exceptional merit to survive for a period of forty years. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was first offered the public in 1872. From a small beginning it has grown in favor and popularity until it has attained a world wide reputation. You will find nothing better for a cough or cold. Try it and you will understand why it is a favorite after a period of more than forty years. It not only gives relief—it cures. For sale by all dealers.

One hesitates to consider what the emotions of King George were when he learned that Queen Mary had been stopped at the door of a museum because she insisted upon carrying an umbrella inside.

Chronic Stomach Trouble Cured.

There is nothing more discouraging than a chronic disorder of the stomach. It is not surprising that many suffer for years with such an ailment when a permanent cure is within their reach and may be had for a trifle? "About one year ago," says P. H. Beck, of Wakelee, Mich., "I bought a package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and since using them I have felt perfectly well. I had previously used any number of different medicines, but none of them were of any lasting benefit." For sale by all dealers.

A Case of Repentance

By MARGARET C. DEVEREAUX

We have usually presumed that repentance must come before death.

Eleanor Blake lost her father when she was a little girl, and her mother took for a second husband one William Markland, a widower with a son, at the time of the marriage twelve years older than his stepsister. The widow was very poor, and Mr. Markland was rich. His son, Joseph, was a singular youth, sometimes under the influence of pure and noble emotions and sometimes apparently swayed by the devil himself. When he was in the former condition he was very kind to Eleanor, but when in the latter he seemed to hate her.

Eleanor was a favorite with her stepfather and he hoped when she grew to be a woman she would marry his son, for he was aware of the latter's Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde disposition and he believed that she would be able to tide him over his evil periods, but he only wished for this; he did not attempt to bring it about. Eleanor's mother died when she was fifteen years old, and after being made again a widower Mr. Markland's affection for his little stepdaughter was much enhanced. His son's periods of wickedness seemed to be increasing on him and were a source of distress to his father.

Then Joe Markland, when Eleanor was seventeen years old, delighted his father by showing evidence that he was falling in love with his stepsister. Eleanor, however, seemed to regard him only as a brother, but as such was extremely fond of him. He asked for a different love, and when she told him that it was not possible for her to give it to him he fell into one of his wicked states and treated her shamefully.

Joe Markland disappeared one day and was not seen at home again for a long while. Meanwhile his father failed in health, and Eleanor was his sole comfort. She considered it her duty as well as her preference to remain single and to minister to him, though she had many suitors. All this time no one knew where Joe Markland was till a few months before his father died, when Eleanor received a letter from him evidently written in one of his angelic moods. He regretted that she could not love him, but did not blame her. He wrote to ask her forgiveness for the way he had treated her.

Eleanor wrote that his father could not live long and begged him to come home and give the invalid what comfort he could during the short time that remained before death. Joe wrote that he would come at once; but, though only a few weeks were needed for the journey, he did not arrive for several months. He reached home the day his father died, and it was perhaps as well that he did not arrive sooner, for, though he showed no outward signs of his mood to those who did not know him well, he was, nevertheless, in one of his devilish conditions. His father was barely able to bid him goodby and whispered to him that he hoped he would some day secure Eleanor for his wife.

Joe took charge of the household and household affairs till after the funeral, when a search was made for the will. No will was found. Joe, being sole heir at law, took possession of the property and told Eleanor that if she would marry him he would turn over the management of it to her. Eleanor refused. Quite possibly, knowing as she did that her stepfather desired the match, she might have yielded, but she saw that Joe was at the time not his better self.

Joe Markland remained at home long enough to put his estate under a competent manager, whom he directed to pay his sister $50 a month and permitted her to remain in the homestead.

One morning looking out of an upper window she saw her stepbrother coming. Though some distance from her, he appeared bedraggled. He was walking rapidly, and she had scarcely seen him when she heard him at the door. She ran down to meet him, but he was not where she had expected to find him. Thinking he had entered before her, she went into the living room. There stood Joe with a heavenly look on his face, such as she had often seen there when he had become repentant. She was about to spring toward him when she noticed that he was dripping with water. And singularly enough there was a salt odor about him. She ran out of the room to get something in which to wrap him till he could change his clothing, and when she returned with a blanket she had snatched from a bed Joe was not there.

What had become of him? She was about to run into the hall to look for him when she noticed on a table a folded document. She took it up and found it soaked with water. Clinging to it was a fine strand of seaweed.

The paper was found to be a will of William Markland, leaving all his property to his stepdaughter, Eleanor Blake.

Eleanor was found lying on the floor in a swoon, and an illness followed. When she recovered she said that she had found the will in the attic under a leak in the roof. Soon after this news came of the death of Joe Markland. He had been drowned trying to swim across an inlet on the coast of Tasmania.

Had he stolen the will while his father was lying dead, possibly in the same room with him?

HAD CATARRH FIVE YEARS.

MR. S. S. JOHNSON
St. Elmo, Illinois.

Mr. Johnson of St. Elmo, Illinois, was troubled five years with catarrh. The catarrh was so severe in his case that his life seemed threatened. As he expresses it himself, he had "one foot in the grave."

Of course he tried to get relief. Many practitioners were consulted and a catarrh specialist in St. Louis was tried. He got so weak and thoroughly run down that he declares he could not walk more than a hundred yards without resting.

Few people understand that catarrh is a constant drain on the system. The discharge of mucus which is going on in such cases is largely composed of blood serum, and is a great waste. Sooner or later it will weaken the strongest man.

According to reports received from Mr. Johnson, he was in a desperate condition, but he found relief from his trouble. We will let him say how he found it. His own words say:

"My friends told me to take Peruna, and I did so. I now feel that Peruna has saved my life. It is the best medicine on earth, and I would not be without it."

This seems almost too good to be true. No doubt there are some readers that will think so. The above statements, however, can be verified by writing Mr. Johnson.

Surf Birds.

That birds of the family termed surf birds in the Hawaiian Islands should leave that paradise of the Pacific to go and rear their young in the tundras of Alaska would seem to many an extraordinary proceeding, yet the turnstone and the black bellied plover and the Pacific golden plover make the long journey of about 4,000 miles thither annually.

"Everybody in our family's some kind of an animal," said Bobby to the amazed lady visitor.

"What nonsense!" she exclaimed.

"Well," replied Bobby, "mother's a dear, my baby sister is mother's little lamb, I'm the kid and dad's the goat."—Dundee Advertiser.

Opposite Opinions.

If Marie Corelli has a large circle of readers who admire her books, there is also a number of people who do not. Two men belonging to the opposing camps, both well known journalists, were discussing her the other day.

"What I like about Miss Corelli," said the one who admired the authoress, "is that she is so—so alive!"

"Yes, that's what I object to!" retorted the other.—London Spectator.
